used for 30 days. Ensuring the safety of children is the most important responsibility of public health officials. In addition to responding to outbreaks of infectious disease, health authorities are also concerned with health emergencies resulting from unintentional injuries and poisonings. The "Every Kid Safe" program is designed to increase the safety of children and young people through promoting health, preventing injuries, and reducing risk for disease. The Every Kid Safe Guide to Home Safety is published by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and focuses on preventing falls, bicycle injuries, and other injuries and poisonings. Educational materials and a toolkit with facts about injury prevention are included. A companion Web site for each toolkit contains resources for individual and group presentations, information on injuries and poisonings, and links to other websites on injury prevention. This program is designed to complement the federal Every Student Succeeds

Act (ESSA) provisions that emphasize “instruction and learning that are rigorous and high quality.” “Every Kid Safe” is a collaboration between the U.S. Department of Education and CDC designed to support the Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA) core requirements to ensure that all students graduate safe and healthy. The ESSA core provisions require that schools have an “effective health and physical education program,” provide “education about the environment and the importance of a safe and health
